Who do I think I am?!

Duis autem vel eum iriure dolor in hendrerit in vulputate velit esse molestie consequat.

This is the prototype for my about page, which at this time I consider my home page as well (I might end up using my portfolio page instead). At the top left is my logo and beneath that is the navigation. The current location has a green background and white text.

I have my name and titles at the top right with an intentionally displaced yellow background for a subtle highlight. Below that, the current page (About) in green. In my main about content, I have my stylized text box that I will be using throughout my site where necessary.

My color palette is green, yellow, and dark gray. My fonts are Kanit semibold italic for headlines, Oswald light for accent, and Scope One for my body text.

Portfolio Piece Title

This is the prototype for my portfolio page. The navigation and header are the same on all pages.

Thumbnails of my portfolio pieces will be placed in my skewed gallery boxes, though the images themselves will not be skewed. Over that I have the title of the piece on a yellow banner. The entire portfolio piece thumb organism will be a clickable link that displays the details of a project.
